Education Session No. 134:
Guardian for a Well Endowed Future:
A Conversation with Jack R. Meyer, co-founder, Convexity Capital Management

April 20, 2009 at 4 PM
Hong Kong

Endowments exist to provide sustainable and reliable support to the organizations they fuel. Universities largely see their missions as producing capable citizens who are prepared and proactive in stewarding sustained human and economic development. Jack Meyer, former president of Harvard Management Company and current chairman of Asian University for Women's Support Foundation Board of Directors, will share his experiences from Harvard and with AUW, highlighting how investment skills can play an important role in public service.

Participants

Jack Meyer, Convexity Capital Management L.P.
