China and India: Today's Traditional and Alternative Investment Opportunities

June 25, 2013 at 6 PM
Greenwich, CT

Opportunity and challenge, risk and reward. Both the traditional and alternative investment markets are growing rapidly in China and India. What are the key factors for investors to evaluate for near-term and long-term growth prospects? What political, regulatory and currency risk factors must investors consider? What is the impact of international institutional activity? Join us as three veteran investors share their views on the current opportunities and risks in these two important high growth markets.

Participants

Scott Booth, Eastern Advisors
Kenneth Chiang, Chilton Investment Company
Nandita Agarwal Parker, Karma Capital Management
Steve Buckles, Moderator, Vanderbilt University

About Council for Economic Education (www.councilforeconed.org)

The Council for Economic Education (CEE) is the leading organization in the United States that focuses on the economic and financial education of students from kindergarten through high school. For the past 60 years, our mission has been to instill in young people the fourth "R"-a real-world understanding of economics and personal finance. It is only by acquiring economic and financial literacy that children can learn that there are better options for a life well lived, will be able to see opportunity on their horizon line and, ultimately, can grow into successful and productive adults capable of making informed and responsible decisions.

About Markets Media

Markets Media was launched in 2007 to provide sophisticated, in-depth content spanning all sectors of the securities industry, delivered across a synergistic platform of print, online and events. Markets Media's editorial mission is to cover the complex interrelationships among key decision makers at hedge funds, institutional money managers, exchanges, broker-dealers, alternative trading systems, technology providers and regulators in an ever-evolving marketplace. In print, online and live at our conferences, Markets Media aims to demystify the strategies and sequence of events that shape investing and trading via direct communication with the most senior people who shape markets; the end-product is business-critical content that cannot be obtained anywhere else.
