Observer, Penser et Agir pour l'enfance et l'adolescence

The organization Païdos was founded by Nicolas Liengme, a child psychiatrist and François Guisan, an environmentalist. Recognising the need for a framework for disadvantaged children and teenagers in difficult situations with few prospects, a professional organization was set up in 1996. The organization helps children and teenagers living in Geneva in precarious situations or cut off from society, to be re-integrated. The organization offers a unique framework combining teaching and psychology, which in several months allows them to regain their identity and find their proper place in their family, their school and in society. The programmes developed by Païdos provide space for integration, re-entering education and counselling, make people more sensitive to and prevent exclusion and improve understanding of problems linked to teenagers.

The CPPA centre caters for adolescents from 13 to 18 years of age who have dropped out from school or an apprenticeship, with the objective to regain their self esteem, to reintegrate them in the school system or in the job market. By making a self-portrait, a project is drawn up for training or a profession. But it is often necessary to catch up on schooling in order to be reintegrated into the system. From January 2009 a new CPPA class was opened. This structure gives adolescents the possibility to catch up and work towards the career path of their choice. The framework is interdisciplinary: medical, pedagogical, educational, psychological. The courses take the form of themed workshops, creative and sporting activities, and cultural exchanges. This project fills a known gap in the educational system and facilitates the return to school of adolescents at risk. Money raised will go towards this program.

L'association Païdos, organisation à but non lucratif, a été fondée en 1996 par Nicolas Liengme, pédopsychiatre et François Guisan, environnementaliste. L'association s'engage depuis 13 ans pour les enfants et adolescents en difficulté. Elle propose des approches thérapeutiques et éducatives innovantes, qui en quelques mois, permettent aux enfants en situation de précarité et aux adolescents en rupture de retrouver leur identité et leur place dans la famille, l'école et la société. Les programmes développés permettent d'offrir des espaces d'intégration, de réinsertion et de soins, de sensibiliser aux phénomènes d'exclusion et de les prévenir, d'amener une meilleure compréhension des problématiques qui touchent les adolescents.

Le Centre Psychopédagogique Pour Adolescents (CPPA) accueille des adolescents, âgés de 13 à 18 ans, en rupture de formation. La réintégration sociale dans une filière scolaire ou de formation professionnelle est l'objectif principal. Pour y parvenir, différents outils et activités permettent à l'adolescent de travailler sur son parcours, ses ressources et son identité. L'adolescent doit ensuite trouver un projet professionnel adapté à ses souhaits et capacités et bénéficier d'une remise à niveau. Afin de répondre à ce besoin, en janvier 2009, le CPPA a ouvert une classe qui accueille une dizaine d'élèves. L'accompagnement est à la fois pédagogique, éducatif et thérapeutique. Les cours ont lieu sous forme d'ateliers et différentes disciplines sont proposées (français, mathématique, sport, activités créatrices, stages en entreprise...). En quelques mois, les adolescents vont s'engager dans un projet professionnel et le retour à l'école sera facilité. La somme collectée va permettre de financer ce programme.

Dr. Nicolas Liengme

Dr. Nicolas Liengme was born in 1970. He received his degree in Medicine from the Geneva University in 1996. In this same year, he founded the Association Païdos for which he has always been the president. This voluntary work further led him to set up a Psycho Pediatric Center for Adolescents, which he still manages at Païdos. One year later, he became the first doctor to lay the groundwork for the Mobile Unit for Community Care within the Community Medicine Department, a service that today treats more than 1,000 disadvantaged patients per month in Geneva.

At the age of 28, after having worked as a pediatrician within the Services of Pediatric Surgery and Pediatrics, and after having received the doctorate for his dissertation on the needs of marginalized populations in Geneva, he was named the head of Multidisciplinary Adolescent Health unit at the Centre Hospitalier Universitaire de Lausanne. In 1999, Dr. Liengme was named head of the Emergency unit within the Medical-Educational Services, which he managed for 3 years.

Alongside his work for public institutions in Geneva, he also founded the Afghan Women and Children association, which develops and supports numerous socio-educational and health projects in Afghanistan, where he worked with support from the International Committee of the Red Cross. He built a team of children's mental health specialists, which led him to set up, two years later, the first clinic in Geneva with departments focused on psychological health.

Dr. Liengme has largely contributed to the knowledge in psychology, psychotherapy and psychoeducation, principally focused on the younger population, while he trained more than 70 professionals in this domain. He has supported thousands of adolescents in Geneva and elsewhere to re-integrate in society and get back on track when their internal and external resources had left them in distress and misery.

Né en 1970, le Dr Nicolas Liengme est diplômé de la faculté de Médecine de l'Université de Genève depuis 1996. La même année, il a fondé l'association Païdos dont il est toujours président. Dans cet engagement bénévole, il monte également et dirige le Centre Psycho Pédagogique pour Adolescents de l'association Païdos. Un an plus tard, il est le premier médecin à poser les premiers jalons de l'Unité Mobile de Soins Communautaires du Département de Médecine Communautaire qui soigne aujourd'hui plus de 1000 personnes en situation de précarité à Genève mensuellement.

À ses 28 ans, après avoir travaillé comme médecin pour l'enfance dans les Services de Chirurgie pédiatrique et de Pédiatrie et après avoir reçu le titre de docteur pour sa thèse de doctorat sur les besoins des populations marginalisées de Genève, il est nommé chef de clinique de l'Unité Multidisciplinaire de Santé des Adolescents du Centre Hospitalier Universitaire de Lausanne. En 1999, Dr. Liengme est nommé chef de clinique à la tête de l'Unité d'Urgences du Service Médico-Pédagogique, qu'il dirigera pendant 3 ans.

Parallèlement à son travail dans les institutions publiques genevoises, il fonde aussi l'association Femmes et Enfants Afghans, qui développe et soutient plusieurs projets socio-éducatifs et de santé en Afghanistan où il se rend grâce au soutien du Comité international de la Croix-Rouge. Il a monté une équipe de spécialistes de la santé mentale de l'enfant qui le conduira à constituer deux ans plus tard la première clinique genevoise avec des départements construits autour de la santé psychique.

Le Dr Liengme a largement contribué à la transmission du savoir en psychiatrie, psychothérapie et psychopédagogie appliquée principalement aux jeunes populations, formant dans ces domaines plus de 70 professionnels. Il a permis à des milliers d'adolescents d'ici et d'ailleurs de se réinsérer dans la société et de retrouver leur voie là où leurs ressources intérieures et extérieures les laissaient dans la détresse et l'impasse.

100 Women in Hedge Funds

2009 EUROPEAN INDUSTRY LEADERSHIP AWARD HONOUREE

MINA GEROWIN

Mina Gerowin was selected to receive the 100 Women in Hedge Funds 2009 European Industry Leadership Award, in recognition of the outstanding professional talent and business ethics that Ms. Gerowin exemplifies, and that define and advance the European hedge fund industry standard of excellence. Ms. Gerowin will be presented with the award at a 100 Women in Hedge Funds fundraiser in London on October 7th, 2009, to benefit the UK education charity, SHINE.

Mina Gerowin is Managing Director of Paulson Europe and a partner of Paulson & Co., specialising in European merger and event-driven investment, including distressed and restructuring investment and the risk arbitrage of both debt and equity. At Paulson she has led investments, including Stork and Ahold, and runs their large European positions. Ms Gerowin spent more than twenty-five years as a problem-solving private investor/operating executive and an investment banker. She has worked as an interim CEO and CRO, specializing in restructuring as well as mergers and acquisitions. She managed her own industrial acquisitions as a founding principal in an LBO partnership. The four LBO investments she made were sold with an aggregate return of close to 1000% in seven years.

These activities encompassed a wide variety of projects from the acquisition of Mack Trucks for Renault, the emergence from bankruptcy of Smith International and Elsinore, restructurings of NTL out of bankruptcy, Nasdaq Europe to the restructuring of ailing steel trading, hotel, terminal, and others. She has participated in the creation of profitable internet businesses, the negotiation and sale of businesses and patents, and secured bank financing and venture funding for clients.

Ms. Gerowin's professional affiliations include more than seven years at Lazard Freres & Co. where she was banker to some of the largest transnational mergers of the 1980s. Subsequently, she ran the Restructuring Department at Dean Witter, before co-founding an LBO firm. From 1991-1994 she was a Managing Director of Golodetz Holdings. Prior to banking, Ms. Gerowin practiced corporate and securities law in the U.S. and Switzerland. Ms Gerowin graduated from Smith College with an A.B. degree, has a J.D. from the University of Virginia School of Law, and an M.B.A. from Harvard Business School where she was a Baker Scholar. She is admitted to the New York and Federal bars and has Series 7, 24 and 63 securities registrations. She has been active in non-profit board work for ballets and museums and is a past President of the Westchester Smith College Club.

Live Auction

AUCTIONEER - CAROLINE LANG

Ms. Caroline Lang is a Managing Director for Sotheby's Geneva and a Senior Director for Sotheby's Europe.

After completing her education at Basel's Humanistisches Gymnasium, with an emphasis on classical studies, Caroline Lang studied painting at the Académie Charpentier in Paris. She started her career in the Impressionist and Modern Art department at Sotheby's London in 1986, moving to Sotheby's Geneva in 1992. Since autumn 2004, she has held the role of Managing Director of Sotheby's Geneva and is the Head of Sotheby's Impressionist, Modern and Contemporary Art department, Geneva.

As a specialist of impressionist, modern and contemporary art, Caroline Lang is regularly in contact with many Swiss and international collectors, advising them on buying and selling at auction and has built one very important collection for a private collector in the past few years.

In May 2002, she was instrumental in gaining the S Collection – Grace and Philip Sandblom – which sold at Sotheby's New York on May 8, 2002, three outstanding paintings for the then exceptional amount of $30 million. Besides that she is one of very few female auctioneers, a profession for which she has gained international recognition. Her successes as an auctioneer in Switzerland, Great Britain and Germany include her role in the week-long auctions of the contents of the German castle, Aus deutschen Schlössern, which took place in Ludwigsburg in 2000, and of the Königlichen Hauses Hannover, which took place in Marienburg castle in October 2005.

In 2000 she orchestrated an exhibition entitled The Artist's Eye at Sotheby's Zurich and regularly gives lectures on the art market, such as Reflections on the passion of photography, L'art et le commerce-that was then, this is now etc.. Caroline Lang is also a non-active board member of location1, a non-profit-making space in New York dedicated to young contemporary artists.

8. An Evening with the Legendary Woody Allen

Be the guest of Woody Allen, the famous film producer, in New York where Woody plays clarinet with the Eddy Davis New Orleans Jazz Band.

A VIP table awaits you at the legendary Carlyle Hotel where you and your guest will be entertained by the multi-talented American film director, writer, comic and jazz clarinetist whilst enjoying classic dishes of the Carlyle restaurant like the succulent and rare fillet mignon. In this intimate venue, which holds only 30 tables, and is booked up months in advance, diners feel like observers at a private jam session, as band members take turns to play the lead and the evening typically winds up with just Woody singing solo with the banjo player. Whilst other audience members might jostle for photos and autographs at the end of the evening, you will take home your own personal piece of Woody memorabilia as a fantastic memento of an exceptional night. Priceless
