It is with great pleasure that I am here this evening and able to see once again the wonderful work of 100 Women in Hedge Funds' Philanthropic Initiatives.

As Patron of both organisations, I am delighted that our partnership this year is with the Child Bereavement Charity, a cause extremely close to my heart. This charity's simply outstanding work means a huge amount to me, and it makes an invaluable difference to thousands of tragically bereaved children, giving them vital support and guidance at a truly desperate time.

Thank you all so much for supporting this brilliant cause; I could not be more grateful. I hope that you all have a wonderful evening.

Will

A History of Saint James's Palace

---

St. James's Palace was built by Henry VIII in 1532. The ground plan of the Tudor Palace largely remains, although today has been integrated with four courtyards - Colour, Ambassador's, Engine, and Friary Court. The surviving Tudor elements are the use of red brick, the Chapel Royal, and the Clock Tower, where Henry VIII's cypher 'HR' can be seen above the arches on either side of the Great Gates.

Fundamental architectural change occurred during the reign of Queen Anne at the beginning of the 18th Century when Sir Christopher Wren, followed by his pupils John Vanbrugh and Nicolas Hawksmoor, was commissioned to redesign the Grand Staircase and State Apartments. The interiors were reworked by William Kent. A fire in 1809 caused extensive damage, but today the resplendent interiors evoke the late Baroque style of the rooms designed for Queen Anne.

St. James's Palace has many historical associations. In 1588, Queen Elizabeth I used St. James's Palace as her headquarters to direct the English fleet against the Spanish Armada, and King Charles I spent his last moments here before being executed in 1649.

Queen Victoria was married in the Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace in 1840, and Princess Alexandra's wedding reception was held here in 1963.

The Queen's Chapel was the resting place of Lord Louis Mountbatten in 1979. Princess Beatrice was christened here in 1988. The Chapel Royal was the resting place for Diana, Princess of Wales, in 1997 as visitors signed the Books of Condolence in the Lower Corridor.

The Palace is today used as a residence for, The Princess Royal and Princess Alexandra, the Hon. Lady Ogilvy. The Prince of Wales and the Duchess of Cornwall reside in Clarence House. The State Apartments are reserved for receptions, concerts, and functions in aid of those charities supported by members of The Royal Family.

The Company of Pikemen & Musketeers

The Company of Pikemen & Musketeers of the Honourable Artillery Company was re-formed in 1925 to act as a ceremonial body at Armoury House and within the City of London. The style of the Company uniform, armour, equipment and "musik" dates from the reign of Charles I, and the drills and orders are taken from a drill manual by Col William Bariffe (a member of the HAC) which was published in 1647.

Manned by volunteers from the Veteran members of the HAC, the Company is governed by the terms of a Royal Warrant presented to the Company by HM The Queen in 1955. This entitles the Company to parade with a maximum of 63 all ranks, this being the size of an equivalent company in the 17th Century.

The Company of Pikemen & Musketeers is very proud of its ceremonial role and active participation in the pageantry of the City of London. Here, the principal duty is to act as escort to the Lord Mayor at the Lord Mayor's Show and at State and other civic functions. Apart from City duties, the Company has taken part in many other events, tattoos and displays both at home and abroad.

In May 2006, the Company had the unique privilege of parading in St. Peter's Square in Rome to celebrate the 500th anniversary of the Swiss Guard.

“How on earth are you meant to live without your children?”

Thank you very much for your support tonight. We thought you would like to know a little more about the work you are supporting.

When a baby or child dies, or a child is bereaved, many of those affected need good quality, professional support to help rebuild profoundly changed, often shattered lives. Sadly, for many children and families that support simply isn't there. Our aim is to make sure that it is.

Why? Because for the past 17 years Child Bereavement Charity (CBC) has trained and advised many tens of thousands of people in the best practice in bereavement support, and become the leading charity in our field, widely respected and uniquely positioned to identify needs and set standards for the field. We know, both from research, and from bereaved families themselves, that the quality of information, support and guidance provided to them makes a real difference, both around the time of bereavement and afterwards.

How will we do it? We are mapping existing UK services to build a complete picture of the support available. We are also identifying the areas in which CBC can most cost-effectively deliver lasting benefits, whether by enhancing skills and practices in existing organisations (e.g. by providing training or supervision, or a telephone based counselling service for bereaved parents), or in the absence of a suitable local partner, by establishing new services. We also plan to increase the number of professionals trained, to change the culture in the whole public sector, in relation to child bereavement. Within five years we aim to double the number of professionals trained annually from 5000 to 10000.

What do we need to achieve this? The pace at which we achieve this will be dictated by the available resources, opportunities and the organisational capacity of CBC. To deliver sustainable development we need to raise an additional £2m each year for at least the next 5 years. Raising the money is going to be a challenge, and we will need many new friends to join us, giving their time, expertise, influence, and money. All are welcome and hopefully some of you here tonight will feel as passionately as we do that providing support for all of those affected when a baby or child dies, or a child is bereaved, is a challenge worth meeting, however hard it may be.

If you would like to join us, please either tick the box on the pledge card inviting us to call you, or call Ian Davis at CBC on 01494 568915 as a first step.

“Today I rang for the first time and I wish I had done it sooner. Just after one phone call I feel a lot better and am looking forward to the call that could help me finally. Thank you.”
